FASHIONABLE PHILANTHROPY

Laguna Beach resident David Heil is using his position as founder of the luxury menswear brand David August to benefit Miracles for Kids, a Tustin-based nonprofit that provides financial aid and other resources to critically ill children and their families. The clothing company recently unveiled a charitable collection of accessories that includes a classic, silk jacquard tie that comes in six versatile color schemes of blue, green, gray, navy, pink and purple, which will meld with any man's wardrobe, as well as three companion pocket squares that are made of Italian silk and come in black, navy and purple tones that perfectly complement the ties' accent colors. Both items feature the censored tagline, "F#*K Cancer," which is speckled across the pocket squares in miniscule print, as well as on the backside of the tie, along with the Miracles for Kids logo to make for a true statement piece.

All of the net proceeds from the sale of these specialty items will be donated to the charity, which caught Heil's attention when he attended the organization's annual Night of Miracles Gala and subsequently joined its board of directors in 2008. These Italian-made products are available online or by making an appointment with one of David August's premier clothiers at the company's showroom in Costa Mesa.
